1. [REDACTED] met on 20 October with the Committee on Language Policy to discuss the present language program, present policy (or lack of it) and the planning for testing to bring the Language Qualifications Register up to date as soon as possible. It appears that some 5,000 tests will be necessary, not counting retests. In order to be effective in minimum time, the testing program will have to be phased according to priorities. A detailed plan for such testing priorities is in process of formulation and will be submitted as soon as it can be completed.
